Letters To The Editor

Letter From Germany

Dear Sir:

Thank you very much for the prompt and constant delivery of The Ohio Alumnus.

Let me inform you that since April my address has changed and I am now teaching here in Sulingen at the local Gymnasium — High School — as full teacher. I passed the last examination early in March, which qualified me to teach English and history at high school level in Lower Saxony, one of the states of the Federal Republic of West Germany.

In January I received my Ph.D. degree from the University of Göttingen. The title of my dissertation is "The Image of Germany in the American Magazines prior to 1817" and is in its main part particularly concerned with the early American-German literary relations.

Keeping In Contact

Dear Sir:

My husband and I enjoy very much our issues of The Ohio Alumnus. It certainly keeps us in contact with the University, which has a spot in our lives well-remembered and loved.

Since our marriage in Cleveland, July 11, 1964, we have resided in Cincinnati. Bruce is employed at Chevrolet-Norwood as a mechanical and layout engineer. He started as a trainee but was recently promoted so he could be assigned to assist in an $18 million modernization program.

I am employed by the Wyoming Board of Education in Wyoming, Ohio, as a teacher of mathematics and science. We both attend Xavier University Evening College. Bruce is working on a master's degree in business administration. I attend alternate semesters, working on a master's degree in education, with concentration in mathematics.

Again, thank you for sending the Ohio Alumnus to us. We read it from cover to cover.

Our Mistake

Dear Sir:

Just a brief correction and some current information.

I did not receive a master of arts degree in education from Western Reserve University as was mentioned in the July issue of The Ohio Alumnus.

However, I was married in Mt. View, California, to James Emmett Fox on June 13, 1964. On September 2, 1965, our daughter, Laura Ann, was born. I guess at this stage just the mentioning of Laura's birth would be appreciated.

Interested Educator

Dear Sir:

Having spent the past weekend with various alumni of Ohio University, I am rather envious that my name has not been included to receive The Ohio Alumnus for some time.

I graduated from Ohio in 1955 with a B.S.C. and returned in 1958-59 to obtain a teaching certificate. At present, I am coordinator of distributive education at Collinwood High School in the Cleveland Public School System.

I am very proud to have graduated from Ohio University, and since I am in the area of education I have a keen interest in its growth. If there is a subscription cost, please bill me.

Story Of Progress

Dear Sir:

For the past two years, I have been in the U. S. Army. The last 22 months were spent at the Waterways Experiment Station, Vicksburg, Mississippi.

During these last couple of years, I have enjoyed reading The Ohio Alumnus. It has kept me in touch with the progress of Ohio University. I am now returning to my civilian job with the New York City Transit Authority, in the capacity of assistant civil engineer.

Artists Abroad

Dear Sir:

I'm delighted with every issue of The Ohio Alumnus. Please, would you include sometime an article about Ohio University graduates turned artists? I've admired the work of Jim Dine in the Stedelijk Museum here in Amsterdam and the Gemeente Museum in The Hague.

Now I see an advertisement of a graphic show with, among other, Andrew Stasik, in Rotterdam. Do I remember his name from my days at Ohio University also?

I'd love to see an article about these and other Ohio University graduates who have succeeded in the art world.

Ed. Note: Jim Dine received a B.F.A. degree from Ohio University in 1957 and Andrew Stasik received the M.F.A. degree in 1956.

Greater Knowledge

I enjoyed your article on Ohio students who are going on to greater academic heights, and I believe that maybe this is a recognition that students once at Ohio are also using the knowledge gained there for educational institutions elsewhere in America.

My husband, Larry, who received his master's degree from Ohio in 1964, is presently pursuing a doctorate degree in personality psychology at the University of Oklahoma. I was graduated from Ohio in February, 1963, with a B.A., and I, too, am continuing my education by working on a master's degree in psychology.

THE DRIVE

Four years ago Vernon R. Alden came to the campus of Ohio University from his position as an Associate Dean of the Harvard Business School. In his first speech on campus, "Change Is Now A Way Of Life," President Alden sketched the character of his plans for Ohio University. One goal was to direct every change: the achievement of distinction in higher education.

The many physical changes that Vernon Alden has wrought at this University over the past four years are the changes most easily recognized. Four years ago the total annual budget of Ohio University was $14 million; today it is $27 million. The top faculty salary offered was $13,500; today it stands at $20,000. The value of the entire physical plant of the University was $40 million; today it exceeds $52 million. In the next four years, planned expenditures will total $41 million for buildings on the main Athens campus and another $9 million on the branch campuses. The University will be making as great an investment in physical facilities in the coming four years as it has made in its entire 162 year history.

*"I have sensed at Ohio a willingness to experiment, to take risks, to innovate
I have sensed too, a willingness to act, to move ahead"*

These were the words of Vernon R. Alden on May 11, 1962, when he was inaugurated as President of Ohio University. He spoke then of the four immediate goals to which he had committed himself. These were: the creation of an honors college within the University; the planning and construction of a new library; the development of additional doctoral programs; and a program which would provide faculty members with opportunities for on-campus research, sabbatical leaves, exchange professorships and overseas teaching.

The University now offers over 1500 courses of instruction, many leading to graduate level degrees. Ten doctoral degrees are now offered. Plans have been made for the development of 23 additional doctoral programs, 19 of which will be operative within the next five years. Over the past four years, graduate student enrollment at the University has increased by almost seventy per cent. Graduate students now make up seven per cent of all students on the Athens campus.

In 1964 the Board of Trustees gave their approval to the constitution of the Faculty Senate. The Senate was established so that those directly involved in teaching and research activities might play an active role in advising the administration and the Board of Trustees. The Senate provides the faculty with a strong voice in major academic situations facing the university. It also supports and coordinates the efforts of faculty members working to make improvements in existing curricula.

During 1965, the Center for International Studies was established in response to an increasing academic interest in cultures other than those of Western Europe and the United States. Initial emphasis is being placed on African studies, but programs are also being planned for Southeast Asia and other foreign area studies. The Center also provides consultation and advisory service to major government agencies and private organizations concerned with foreign affairs.

For the past three years Ohio University has been instrumental in the training of Peace Corps Volunteers for tours of duty in the Federal Republic of Cameroon. Ohio University was the first university in the nation to establish a program enabling volunteers to continue their studies while in service overseas. A University faculty member is assigned as Education Officer to these volunteers in the Cameroon.

The Honors college was established in 1964 in an effort to give the outstanding student an intellectual challenge commensurate with his abilities. Students are admitted to the program upon achieving a 3.5 average during their freshman year. Once admitted, a student devotes one-third of his undergraduate work to advanced courses available only to students of the College. During both the junior and senior years the student devotes himself to independent study and research projects under the guidance of a faculty adviser. A degree with honors is awarded successful Honors College candidates. Ninety per cent of these graduates have continued their education at the graduate level.

In addition to this program, Departmental Honors Programs are available to junior and seniors who have attained a 3.0 accumulative average. In conjunction with this departmental program, the student produces an independent research paper in his major field.

The Ohio Plan, an experimental program which develops undergraduate student potential for public service leadership, was founded for its first two years by a grant from the Mellon Foundation. Students selected to participate in the Ohio Plan are given the opportunity to participate in special seminar groups, to meet with outstanding men from many fields, and to work on an internship basis with individuals or organizations concerned with major social problems.

An Esso Education Foundation grant has assisted the University in developing a curriculum acceleration program which permits outstanding students to complete many lower-level courses in one-third to two-thirds of the time normally required. Advanced students are then allowed to devote more of their time to academic areas of special interest.

During the past year the University established a Summer Internship Program to provide superior students with an opportunity to reinforce their classroom knowledge by working in positions of responsibility with many organizations during the summer months. The Department of State, A.I.D., members of the U.S. House of Representatives, state agencies, research institutes and major industries are participating in the Internship Program.

As a supplement to this program, the Internship Office sponsors a European Work-Travel Program. Over 125 Ohio University students participated in the 1965 summer program, flying by chartered jet to Germany where they worked at jobs arranged by the University. At the conclusion of the eight-week work program students are free to travel.

Also, in cooperation with the Institute of European Studies; the University offers a Study-Travel Program. A 54-day tour provides the student with an opportunity to obtain six hours of academic credit while traveling through England, France, Germany, Italy and Greece. Students attend the performance of a Greek tragedy in the amphitheater at Epidaurus, near Athens, read Latin satire while in Rome, study Dante's Inferno in Florence, read medieval morality plays in Salzburg and study Shakespearean drama at Stratford.

In addition to making substantial improvements in academic programs, President Alden has committed the resources of Ohio University to the economic development of the Southeast Ohio area.

"Stated in simple terms, this is why we are concerned with the economic health of Southeastern Ohio. A vigorous local economy will help improve our University and vice versa. When citizens in the area are free from the paralysis of poverty, they will be eager to help us build a great university. When people can satisfy their basic physical needs, then they will pursue other needs. They will develop a healthy thirst for knowledge and a natural desire for enlightenment."

Shortly after his arrival in Athens, President Alden spoke before the Athens Business Association on the prospects for prosperity in Athens. He outlined a plan for University-community development that would restore economic health to Athens and Southeastern Ohio. His specific recommendations for action were in the areas of urban renewal, flood control, highways, increased city budget, school consolidation, community hospital facilities, airport expansion, and a University-based technical assistance center to help communities develop facilities for new industries.

All of this could not be accomplished within the span of four short years, but today those plans are nearer reality than ever before. Urban renewal has been approved. The city budget of Athens has increased substantially; plans are now being drawn for a new community hospital; airport facilities have undergone initial expansion; and the Institute for Regional Development has been instrumental in bringing industry and technical assistance to a twenty-one county area.

The federal government has begun a project to control the annual flooding along the Hocking River; plans for highway construction to provide better transportation to and from Athens will soon be completed; and the community has seen private building activity unequalled in recent area history.

The University and the community have both grown during these past four years. Private developers have invested strongly in the future of Athens with such buildings as The Ohio University Inn, built by John Calbreath; Bromley Hall, built by the Tishman Construction Company; Lakeview Manor Apartments; Rumac Recreation Center; Athens Apartments and the Carriage Hill development.

The University has acquired language houses for students interested in language learning as an environmental experience; the new South Green is nearing the construction stages; a $25 million Science and Engineering Complex is presently under construction; the $7 million Beasley Convocation Center and the new seven story, six and one-half million dollar library are now nearing the construction stages. University branches are growing across Southeastern Ohio. During the past few months, four of the six branch colleges have been the site of groundbreaking ceremonies for permanent academic-administrative buildings.

Over these four years the University has progressed in many ways. It has acquired many federal and private grants for research. Ohio University received a $200,000 satellite tracking station from Sohio and DC-3 airplane complete with scientific equipment for use in research projects from the Federal Aviation Agency.

Physical progress has been matched by developments in the academic stature of Ohio University. Recently, college campuses across the nation were torn by dissension over the question of free speech and its academic implications. There was no reason for dissent at Ohio University.

" Our society believes in freedom of speech and discussion. So does Ohio University

We recognize the right of our students and faculty to engage in free discussion, to hear speakers of their choice and to write without fear of administrative censure

Under this policy Ohio students listened not only to speakers such as George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi party, and Anton Krechmarek, American communist, but also to such great men as President Lyndon B. Johnson, historian Arnold Toynbee, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, former president Dwight D. Eisenhower, and many other distinguished visitors.

President Alden has won the respect of both students and faculty with his views on the educational purposes and goals of the American University.

" We have placed the highest priority on the development of a faculty distinguished both for the discovery of significant new knowledge and the effective dissemination of what is known. We are determined also to find new methods for expanding and intensifying the contacts between teacher and taught, for only through a continuing exchange of information and speculation will individuals acquire the ability to use their knowledge to creative ends

President Vernon R. Alden has stimulated progress toward academic distinction while meeting the challenge of rising enrollment and expanding facilities. In the past four years he has given Ohio University not only an exciting present, but a future that is bright with promise.

Total enrollment on the Athens campus is expected to reach 25,000 by 1975. Dr. Alden is shown here addressing the Class of 1969.

TRUSTEES' ACADEMY HONORS DONORS

The Board of Trustees of Ohio University inaugurated the Trustees' Academy this fall to honor alumni and friends who give outstanding financial support to the University's academic program.

Funds raised through the Trustees' Academy will be used primarily to enhance scholarly opportunities for professors. A major provision will be salary increases which will enable the University to keep exceptional faculty members and attract other outstanding scholars.

Other new or expanded faculty programs to be supported by the Academy are sabbatical leaves, research opportunities, publishing programs and teaching awards.

Academy membership is open to those people who commit themselves to the belief that the University's excellence is dependent upon adequate financial support.

Two membership plans are available: 1) a $10,000 cash gift or a pledge of $10,000 to be met within ten years 2) a deferred gift through a bequest, life insurance policy, life income contract of life irrevocable trust within a minimum of $15,000.

"Members of the Academy will plan a positive role in the University's future", stated Philip K. David, director of the Trustees' Academy. "They will be asked to assist the University as representatives of the President. Their counsel will be sought by the Board of Trustees and the deans of the colleges and they will be invited to meet with distinguished visitors on campus."

"Special reports and seminars will inform these friends of the University about its future plans and needs, and a special pass for two will provide Academy members a reserved seat for all on campus events," he said. An annual black tie banquet is also planned.

Though the Academy has been active only six weeks, nineteen people have seen the value it will have on the future of Ohio University and have pledged their support as of the end of December.

Three Groundbreaking Ceremonies Held For New Branch Campuses

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held October 16 at Zanesville, November 24 at Portsmouth and November 29 at Belmont County for three new permanent Ohio University branch campus buildings. Present at the ceremonies were Ohio Governor James A. Rhodes, President Vernon R. Alden, and Dean of Off-Campus Academic Programs, Edward Penson.

The campuses will serve their communities as two year colleges and also as "feeder" colleges to the main campus in Athens. All branch campuses will offer two-year curricula in the arts and sciences, business administration and education as well as programs in the fine arts and engineering.

Expansion of the branches will tie in with the plan calling for the main campus to reach a ceiling of 20,000 by 1970. There are presently 2107 full-time and 2681 part-time students enrolled at Ohio's six branches. However, the planned enrollment for the branch colleges calls for an eventual student ceiling of 5,000 on each of the six.

Breaking ground for the new Zanesville Branch Campus are, left to right, Trustee Fred H. Johnson, Trustee Don M. Casto, Jr., Dean of Off-Campus Academic Programs Edward M. Penson, Governor James A. Rhodes, Ohio President Vernon R. Alden, Trustee Russell Herrold, County Commissioner Hutson J. Barnes and Muskingum County State Representative David Weissert.

The Zanesville campus, located on a 170 acre tract near Armco Park in the northwest section of the city, will be the site of a $2 million building housing classrooms, a library, laboratories and all administrative facilities. Speakers at the event were Russell Herrold, member of the Board of Trustees and Dr. John C. Millett, Chancellor of the Board of Regents. Completion of the building is slated for late in 1966.

Downtown Portsmouth will be the site of a $1,750,000 classroom and administration building located on a four acre tract of cleared urban renewal land. The red brick and stone Georgian-style building will have four floors and 10,000 feet of floor space for utilization by both academic and administrative personnel. Completion of the Portsmouth branch building is expected by January 1967.

Ohio University trustee Duncan Baxter of Portsmouth and Portsmouth branch board of trustees president James Strafford headed an enthusiastic group of Portsmouth officials and branch college supporters at the November 24 ceremony. Others present included Edwin L. Kennedy, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Ohio University, Scioto County Representative Vernal G. Riffe, Jr., and State Senator Oakley Collins of Ironton.

The Belmont County branch, located four miles west of Saint Clairsville on Route 40, was Ohio University's fourth groundbreaking this year. The $1.8 million building will be three stories high and will house all University branch functions. It represents the beginning of a 385 acre campus with a planned enrollment of 5,000 students.

Total state investment in the four new branch campus buildings, Chillicothe, Saint Clairsville, Zanesville and Portsmouth, is $7 million. Land for the new buildings was provided by the local communities.

Presently most branch classes are conducted in the area high schools. Plans now call for the main campus in Athens to become predominantly upperclass and graduate with the branches handling most of the underclassmen. Opportunities for both full and part-time study are available at all branch colleges. Adult extension courses will also be held.

Architects rendering of the $1,750,000 branch building in downtown Portsmouth as it will look when completed in 1966.

Ohio University has been the pioneer of branch education in Ohio. After establishing the state's first branch in Chillicothe in 1946, the university has continually expanded its off-campus programs. With six branches, it continues to lead all universities in the state in branch development.

The Belmont County Branch is the first step toward completion of a planned 385 acre campus serving 5,000 students. The campus is located four miles from Saint Clairsville.

UNIVERSITY

Ohio University has become the owner of the world's only privately-operated satellite tracking station.

The $200,000 Sohio Satellite Tracking Station, built eight years ago at the Warrensville Laboratory of the Standard Oil Company, was formally presented to the University at a luncheon with officials of the company and the University at Sohio's main offices in Cleveland. President Vernon R. Alden accepted the gift from Charles E. Spahr, Sohio president. Dr. Alden was accompanied by Dr. Robert Savage, dean of engineering at Ohio, and R. A. McFarland, associate professor of electrical engineering and director of Ohio University's Radar Hill project.

Dr. Savage stated that Ohio University researchers will be able to receive and transmit to satellites with the equipment. Newly developed circuitry makes it possible to both receive and transmit from the same location. Previously, he said, transmitting and receiving stations had to be separated by at least fifty miles.

The station's facilities have been erected at Ohio's Radar Hill Laboratory. They will be used to augment studies in space communications already underway at Radar Hill and will also be made available for private and government-sponsored research projects. The equipment will be used to investigate the effects of the troposphere and ionosphere on signals radiating from spacecraft in flight. The tracking station facilities will also be useful in examining noise signals arriving from outer space and in passive detection and surveillance of spacecraft transmissions.

Ohio University has agreed to provide Sohio with information pertaining to station activities in order to assist the company in maintaining close contact with space program activities.

In 1958, two days after the station was established at its Warrensville location, it won world wide acclaim for its work. Explorer 1, America's first artificial satellite, was launched and signals from it were picked up and successfully tracked by the station. Since then the Sohio facility has tracked every major satellite. Among major achievements of the station was the determination of the mass and shape of secret Soviet Cosmos series satellites. The station received official government recognition for this feat. The tracking station also made the first good voice tape recording of Soviet space man Gherman Titov in his flight across the United States.

According to the Sohio president,

Ohio University was selected to receive the gift because it has established capability in microwave research that can be readily used in satellite tracking. Spahr said the size and complexity of the tracking station had reached the point where Sohio believed the facilities could be better operated by a university.

Facilities at the Radar Hill location already include a 30 foot steerable antenna, a 28 foot fixed antenna and various tracking receivers. Staff at Radar Hill consists of a seven man team of faculty members and electrical engineering students headed by R. A. McFarland.

Ralph Burhans, who joined the Radar Hill staff earlier this year, was the developer of the tracking station. Mr. Burhans was formerly a research associate at Standard Oil. Sohio provided the original funds for the station and most of the equipment was built from private contributions.

The Radar Hill Laboratory was first organized in 1963 for use in moon and satellite tracking programs. Both Ohio University and Ohio State University are now working together in a joint program, partially utilizing the Laboratory, and are receiving grants from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Ralph Burhans, (seated) Ohio University engineering research associate and developer of the tracking station, is shown demonstrating the controls of the newly-installed facility. Man at his right is unidentified.

GORDON K. BUSH, RETIRED TRUSTEE, DIES

Gordon K. Bush, loyal alumnus and faithful servant of Ohio University, publisher of The Athens Messenger and a pioneer in Athens aviation, died November 29 in University Hospital, Columbus, as the result of complications following lung surgery. He was 62 years old.

Mr. Bush, a native of Athens, was graduated from Ohio University in 1924. The same year he was graduated from the University of Missouri with the degree of bachelor of journalism. He received post graduate training at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, receiving the master of business administration degree in 1926.

Upon the death of his father, Frederick, in 1929, he returned to Athens to assume his post as publisher. The Messenger, which furnishes the fundamental training for Ohio journalism students, continued to prosper. His success was recognized, and he was elected president of the Ohio Select List of Daily Newspapers.

Mr. Bush's appointment to the Ohio University Board of Trustees was also made as a successor to his father. When he retired from the Board in 1962, he had served 33 years, longer than any other person in the history of the University. Twice Board Chairman, he headed the Board's planning, building and loan purchase committee during the expanding post-World War II years.

President Vernon R. Alden said Mr. Bush's service as a trustee "far exceeded ordinary obligations of the office." He added, "His selfless devotion to the board, university and the state of Ohio will long be reflected in the progress of Ohio University."

Mr. Bush's avid interest in flying influenced the formation of Athens Airways, Inc., of which he became president. The corporation managed the airport on East State Street before it was taken over by the University. World War II saw the airport become a base for pilot training and as headquarters for the Athens unit of the Civil Air Patrol, an auxiliary of what was then the Army Air Corps. Mr. Bush, who helped organize the CAP unit, rose to the rank of major in the civilian flying organization and became a group commander.

Mr. Bush was active in the affairs of South-eastern Ohio communities, serving as a leader in industrial and business development enterprises. He was a member of Rotary, Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society, Beta Theta Pi fraternity, the Athens Country Club, Skyline Gun Club, the local chapter of Symposiarch and the First Presbyterian Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Izotta Ackerman; a son, G. Kenner Bush, Jr., of Athens; two daughters, Mrs. Frank Spencer, Jr., (Joan) of Newark, O., and Jennie Ray Bush, of New York City, and a sister, Mrs. Marian Bush Reeder of Athens.

Alumni and parents of Ohio University students are enthusiastically supporting the Library Enrichment Fund, a bold, imaginative program begun last year by the Ohio University Fund, Inc. More than $11,700 has been contributed by 756 donors to purchase 1,175 volumes for the Edwin Watts Chubb Library.

The program was undertaken after a report was released last year showing Ohio University library holdings at a rather low 355,000. This figure was in comparison to over one million volumes held by universities of comparable size.

Within the next year ground will be broken for construction of a new library on the site now occupied by Boyd Hall and the Women's Gymnasium. A goal of 1,100,000 volumes has been set for the new library by 1971. Although construction of the new library building has been assured by passage of a state bond issue, the state does not provide adequate numbers of volumes to meet the needs of the expanding University. The purchase of additional volumes must be supported by private gifts.

In a recent letter to Fund Director James P. Banks, Dr. Rena L. Urban, a Mt. Lebanon, Pennsylvania, physician and a 1934 Ohio alumna, wrote: "I was delighted to read in your note that this program is being well received. It does seem like an excellent proposal to continue this program as a special Support Project during the building phase of the new library. Please feel you can count on me for continuing support."

Many contributions have been made in memory of a friend or relative. Volumes purchased by the library are distinguished by a bookplate bearing the name of the donor or the name in whose memory the contribution was made. The enduring nature and the day-to-day usefulness to thousands of students make such gifts fitting memorials.

Alumni, Parents Continue Support Of Library Enrichment Fund

Recently, the Ohio University Women's Club of Youngstown contributed $170 to the Library Enrichment Fund in memory of 17 deceased members. The Akron Association of Ohio University Women contributed $10 in memory of a deceased member with the expressed desire it be used to purchase a volume on art and painting.

The first "Book of the Month" contributor to the Enrichment Fund is Mayor John Laslo of Martins Ferry, Ohio, parent of John W. Laslo, a student at the Belmont County Branch Campus. Mayor Laslo is providing one book each month for the Chubb Library through a $120 contribution.

Industry, such as the Ironton Malleable Division of The Dayton Malleable Iron Company, has also supported University library needs. The Ironton firm contributed $300 especially earmarked for the purchase of volumes for the library at the Ohio University Branch Campus at Ironton.

Only a small start has been made to meet a staggering need. As an extension of the Library Enrichment Fund program begun last year, the Ohio University Fund will conduct a second mail appeal in March which will feature a rare volume purchasing program.

Traditionally, universities relate their academic stature to the excellence of the library. Continued support of the Library Enrichment Fund will fulfill Ohio University's commitments to quality education.

A minimum gift of ten dollars is requested. However, for each additional ten dollars another book is purchased in the donor's name. Checks are to be made payable to the Ohio University Fund, Inc.

Rehabilitation of Wilson Hall on the Main Green and the Old Post Office Building on Union Street has been completed by the Karr Construction Company of Chester, Ohio. Work was begun on the buildings early last summer.

Wilson Hall, one of the oldest buildings on the Ohio University campus, was remodeled at a cost of $125,000. Contractors were confronted with a unique construction problem when it was discovered that the replacement of several structural members of the very old building was necessary after construction had begun. The building is now occupied by the offices of the Director of Admissions and the offices of the Dean of the University College.

The old Post Office Building now houses the University's business offices, the office of the Registrar, IBM offices, bookkeeping, housing, security, residence hall operations and the state auditor's representative. Space vacated by these offices in McCuffey and Ewing Halls is being used for academic needs and for other expanding offices of the University. Total cost of the project was $200,000.

Construction, first slated to be completed by early fall, was slowed somewhat by difficulties experienced by the contractors in obtaining both materials and workers. This was caused by the tremendous amount of building going on in Athens and at the University, and by the installation of a greater amount of IBM and computer facilities in the newly remodeled Post Office Building.

Renovation of both buildings was extensive. The entire inner structure of Wilson Hall has been replaced and the outer shell strengthened. Remodeling of the old Post Office Building included roofing the rear portion of the structure to provide additional space, widening of South Congress Street on the east side of the building, intensive inner construction, and the connecting of a tunnel to the University heating plant.

Renovation of the Old Post Office Building was completed at a cost of $200,000. The spacious, well-lighted offices provide needed space for expanding business and Computer Center operations. Space vacated by the offices in McCuffey and Ewing Halls is being used for academic needs and other offices of the University.

THE DETERMINATION TO EXIST

Players stand at attention at center ice for the National Anthem before starting 60 minutes of rugged action. The Bobcat skaters now play an independent schedule that includes Colorado College, Army, and Boston State College.

Tiff Cook learned to ice skate at the age of seven in his native Ontario, Canada, which really isn't very unusual. Later, his love for the ice led him to hockey and eventually to Ohio University. Ice hockey is one of the most popular sports in Canada. Ice hockey at Ohio University is relatively new, having been in existence only seven years. The interesting point is that Tiff Cook, goalie and one of six Canadians on the squad, came to Ohio University to play ice hockey.

The prestige Ohio University now holds in the fast moving rough and tumble sport can be attributed to many factors, including the determination to exist without direct financial help from the University's intercollegiate athletic department.

With the completion of Bird Arena in 1958, a small group of hockey-loving students banded together with hopes of establishing a team for the next year. Application was made and approved for recognition of ice hockey as a University club sport to be financed from admission to home games. Ohio then joined the already established Ohio Intercollegiate Hockey Association League for the 1958-59 season.

That was seven years ago. Today, Ohio University is no longer a member of the Ohio Intercollegiate Hockey Association, admission is still charged for home games, and the determination to exist financially is stronger than ever. Every effort is being made by the administration and athletic department to make hockey a recognized intercollegiate sport, but the old nemesis—money—is standing in the way.

"Next to football, hockey would probably be our most costly sport," Athletic Director Bill Rohr told the Ohio University Post recently. "The big problem lies in the distance the team has to go to play its games. There aren't many schools with varsity teams in Ohio, and when you get into the long trips it begins to run into quite a lot of money," Rohr added.

After dominating the Ohio league for five years, the Bobcats icers dropped out to play a stronger independent schedule. On the schedule this year are away games with such national powers as Colorado College, Army, Boston State College, Wisconsin and Port Huron in Michigan. The trips are financed by guarantees from opponents and admission charged at Bird Arena for home games.

Some financial help has come from the athletic department budget in the form of new uniforms, additional equipment and replacement of nonserviceable gear. But each squad member still must buy his own protective pads, mouthguard and sticks.

Coach John McComb, who has been at the hockey helm since the sport began at Ohio, feels the hockey players have done an exceptional job as a club. "These kids come down here and work hard for four years, but they don't walk away with a varsity letter when they graduate. I think it is a real tribute to them that hockey is starting to catch hold here."

In six previous seasons the Ohio icers established the enviable record of 54 wins, 31 losses and 1 tie, including three consecutive Ohio Intercollegiate Hockey Association Championships. Several years ago the team was nicknamed "the New York Yankees of Ohio college hockey," by virtue of not having lost to another Ohio college hockey team in four years. Last season, the first as an independent, Ohio carded a 13-5-1 record. The only Ohio school on the Bobcat schedule this year is Ohio State, with a home and home series set for late February.

Ohio's rougher schedule has helped boost attendance. Recently installed electric heaters and a blacktopped seating area provided by the athletic department have added comfort for the spectators. For the first time, WOUB-TV is telecasting all of the Bobcats home contests on a live and videotaped basis.

The "fastest sport in the world" will eventually become an Ohio varsity sport. Athletic Director Rohr summed it up best when he said, "It has to come. It is a matter of when and not whether or not it will ever happen." When that day comes, and Coach McComb has a few scholarships available for prospective players, Ohio University might well be called "the New York Yankees of U. S. College hockey."

Ohio Soccer Squad Completes 6-4-1 Season; Participates In NCAA Post-Season Tourney

All was quiet in the Baker Center ballroom as soccer coach John McComb stepped to the microphone. His squad, which had just finished the regular season with an overall 6-4-1 record, was seated directly in front of the main table. Then, in a slow, clipped Bostonian accent, McComb announced that the Bobcat booters had become the school's first participant in the NCAA Tournament.

Soccer has made rapid strides since it first became a varsity sport in 1956. Labeled by some as a game of football without pads, soccer is a rugged, fast-moving game that has definite spectator appeal. An indication that soccer has "caught-on" with Ohio students and Athens residents came with the overflow crowd of 2000 that witnessed Ohio's 2-0 loss to national power Michigan State on Ohio's field this fall.

Ohio's final 6-4-1 record was good for only third place in the tough Ohio Collegiate Soccer Association, comprised of Dayton, Oberlin, Ohio Wesleyan, Denison, Ohio State, Kent State, Akron, Bowling Green and Ohio University. But outside competition from national powers Pittsburgh and Michigan State boosted Ohio's stock, and it paid off with the Bobcats' selection for the NCAA tourney.

The luck of the draw pitted McComb's booters against defending champion St. Louis, winners of the tourney four of the last six years. "It's a great honor for our team to be selected and St. Louis will be the best team we've ever played,"

McComb said after being notified of his team's selection. Sixteen teams were selected for the tourney from six regions across the country.

The Bobcats flew out of Columbus Friday morning, November 19, via chartered plane to engage the Billikens in St. Louis. Before departing McComb said, "We're capable of winning and if Sam Roberts is in top physical condition this will make a big difference." Roberts, a sophomore whiz from Nigeria, was injured earlier in the season and did not play in the loss to Michigan State. Going into the game with St. Louis, Roberts had amassed 11 goals and two assists for 13 points.

A definite underdog, the Bobcats parlayed an early first period goal by tri-captain Tom Cranston and dogged defensive play to hold a 1-0 lead at halftime. Stunned, the top-rated Bills tied matters in the third period and then shoved across the deciding goal early in the fourth period on a shot that bounced over Ohio goal tender Darrell Kilpatrick.

"It was a 100 percent effort all the way . . . we just couldn't pull it out," said a dejected but proud McComb afterwards. St. Louis mentor Bob Gleucker had kind words for the visiting Bobcats and heaped praise on Kilpatrick. "We controlled the game, but Ohio's goal tender was great," he said. Kilpatrick finished with 11 saves as St. Louis attempted 24 shots. Ohio was held to just six shots, all in the first half.

Three games later, St. Louis nipped Michigan State, 1-0, for its fifth NCAA championship.

Sophomore whiz Sam Roberts, shown approaching the ball, tallied 11 goals and added two assists in leading the Bobcat booters to a berth in the NCAA tournament. Soccer has become a crowd-pleaser as evidenced by the 2000 fans who witnessed the battle with Michigan State.

RAMBLERS

OHIO 93 DEPAUW 71

Control of the backboards gave Ohio a somewhat easy win over visiting DePauw in the season opener at Grover Center. The Bobcats snared 67 rebounds and shot a hot 48 percent from the field in overwhelming the smaller Tigers from Indiana. Five players hit double figures for Ohio, with center John Schroeder leading the way with 18 markers. Schroeder also pulled down 15 rebounds.

OHIO 60 NORTHWESTERN 62

Two free throws in the closing seconds gave Northwestern a 62-60 win over Ohio at Evanston. The Bobcats trailed by as many as 12 points in the second half before a late surge tied matters at 60-60 with 1:47 remaining. Forward Ken Fowlkes paced the scoring with 20 points, but got little help scoring wise from his teammates. Ohio shot a miserable 39 percent from the field, but did win the rebounding war, 45-44.

OHIO 102 NORTHERN ILLINOIS 64

Scoring and rebounding almost at will, Jim Snyder's cagers romped to an easy 102-64 win over Northern Illinois at Grover Center. The Bobcats grabbed off 90 rebounds to break the old school mark of 88 set in 1958. Ohio led 53-34 at halftime and really poured on the coal in the closing 20 minutes. John Schroeder paced the scoring with 19 points, followed by forwards Fred Cluff with 16, Phil Williams with 15 and Ken Fowlkes with 14. Guard Mike Hammond added 10.

OHIO 78 LOYOLA 96

George Ireland's Loyola Ramblers handed Ohio its worst beating of the young season in the first game of a doubleheader at the Chicago Stadium. The 'Cats were down by 17 at halftime, but managed to creep to within six early in the second half. Here, the run-shoot-run Ramblers turned red hot and that was that. Forward Ken Fowlkes paced Ohio with 19 points although he fouled out with 10 minutes left in the second half.

OHIO 74 PURDUE 73

Forward Russ Hamilton tipped in a missed shot with two seconds remaining to give the Bobcats a come-from-behind victory over Purdue at West Lafayette. Ohio trailed 73-70 with two minutes left, narrowed the gap to one with 1:53 to go, and then regained control of the ball at 1:15. Two Ohio timeouts, the second one with 10 seconds left, called for John Schroeder to take the final shot. However, a traffic jam plugged the middle and Ken Fowlkes fired away from outside. Hamilton grabbed the rebound and became the hero. Four Bobcats reached double figures, with Hammond leading the way with 15 points. Dave Brown added 14, Schroeder 12, and Hamilton 11.

OHIO 110 SAN FRANCISCO ST. 62

The Bobcats returned home following the Purdue squeaker and blistered the nets for their highest point output of the season. Four players reached double figures as everyone on the squad was given the opportunity to play. Don Spires, a junior center, came off the bench to lead the scorers with 16 points. Ohio had a noticeable edge in rebounds and in field goal accuracy.

OHIO 100 MIAMI (FLORIDA) 105

Poor free throw shooting cost the Bobcats a victory in this one played in the sunny south. Ohio shot 50 percent from the field but could manage only 16 of 35 from the charity stripe. Ken Fowlkes led the Bobcats scorers with 23 points, followed by Dave Brown's 20, and Fred Cluff's 15. Ohio was down by only three at halftime, 51-48, but the loss of John Schroeder and Russ Hamilton via the foul route cost dearly. Miami became the first team to outrebound the Bobcats, controlling the boards to the tune of 65-50.

OHIO 63 DAVIDSON 96

"The worst we've looked in 10 years," was the way Ohio mentor Jim Snyder described Ohio's shellacking at the hands of Davidson at the Charlotte, N. C., Coliseum. A fellow Buckeye, Dick Snyder of Canton, paced the winners with 46 point. Ohio lost Fowlkes and Hamilton on fouls, and only two Bobcats, Brown and Schroeder, managed to score in double figures. Ohio led in rebounds, but Davidson shot a sizzling 64 per cent from the field and 70 per cent from the foul line to give some indication of the accuracy they enjoyed.

OHIO 90 BROWN 52

The Bobcats chalked up their 29th straight home court victory with a decisive win over the visiting Bruins from Providence, R. I. Four 'Cats reached double figures with John Schroeder paving the way with 22 points. Dave Brown added 15, Mike Hammond 13, and Ken Fowlkes 14. Fowlkes pulled down 26 rebounds and Schroeder 22 as Ohio dominated both backboards. Jim Snyder's cagers held a commanding 42-26 halftime bulge, and before the final buzzer sounded every Bobcat saw action.

OHIO 70 POLISH OLYMPIC TEAM 61

The touring Polish Olympic Team paid a visit to Athens January 3 to play an exhibition game against the Bobcats. The victory does not count toward the regular season, but it gave Ohio some needed practice before the MAC schedule hits high gear. Mike Hammond paced the victors with 20 points.

EUROPEAN TOUR SLATED FOR OHIO ALUMNI

Ohio alumni will have an opportunity to travel abroad this summer as part of an Association-sponsored tour of four European capitals. The 21-day excursion includes round trip by jet to and from New York's John F. Kennedy Airport, first class land tours and transportation and four days in each of the capitals of London, Rome, Paris and Amsterdam.

Dates of Ohio Alumni Tour Abroad are from Monday, July 18, through Thursday, August 4. Total cost is $698.00 per person. The travel itinerary was programmed with ample free time for personal sight-seeing, shopping or visits to some of Europe's famous gourmet restaurants.

First stop will be Rome and the Massimo d'Azeglio Hotel. Then Paris, where alumni will stay at the Hotel Continental. Airconditioned motor coach tours of Paris, visits to Versailles and dinner aboard a Seine River cruise ship will be highlights. Next stop will be London's Hotel Picadilly, a visit to Stratford-on-Avon and a complete tour of the English capital.

Amsterdam, a free port, will be the final stop before returning to New York. Alumni will stay at Amsterdam's Hotel Victoria, take a canal tour of the city and meet for dinner at the famous Indonesian restaurant, the Bali. Because Amsterdam is a free port, alumni may purchase exotic items just prior to the flight back to the United States.

All hotels are first class with private bath. The total price includes two meals daily to allow alumni to explore restaurants of their choice. An experienced alumni guide will offer suggestions or provide specific information about points of interest.

An added feature of the tour will be the opportunity for interested alumni to acquire three credit hours in one of two courses, History of Painting and Sculpture or Research in Art. Dr. Frederick Leach, director of the School of Painting, will conduct special visitations and lectures in each of the capitals. Participation is optional.

Reservations will be accepted on a first come, first serve basis until March 15, and should be addressed to Mrs. Rebecca Hodes, '43, InterTravel Corporation, 3 West Railroad Avenue, Tenaflly, New Jersey. Alumnae Hodes will acknowledge receipt of deposit, and supply complete travel and tour itineraries and other information.

Fourth Annual Alumni College July 10-16

The fourth annual Alumni College, guaranteed to be bigger and better than ever, will be held July 10-16. Registration is open to all alumni and former students who were enrolled at Ohio for more than one semester, wives and husbands of Ohio faculty members and special friends of the University. A limited number of applicants will be accepted from friends of alumni, college graduates and nongraduates.

Alumni College participants will once again reside at the beautiful Ohio University Inn. The Inn's spacious dining facilities will be used for breakfast, luncheon and dinner, and a special Alumni College steak cook-out will be held on the Inn patio near the swimming pool.

Classes will be held each morning, Monday through Friday, beginning at 9 a.m. Classroom buildings will include Space Arts, Copeland Hall and Bentley Hall on the main campus. Evening discussion sessions will be held at The Inn.

Informality will keynote the week. Sports clothes will fit most situations for both men and women. There will be a minimum of dress-up events, so one suit or one or two informal dinner dresses should suffice. A bathing suit and golf, tennis and bowling garb will be essential. If participants have golf clubs, bowling ball or bowling shoes, they should be included when packing.
